

Seizure in a female infant

Akhondian, J. , Jafari, V.

Department of Pediatrics, Ghaem Hospital, Mashhad University of Medical Sciences, Mashhad, Iran

View references \(12\)

Abstract

The authors report a case of epilepsy presented as infantile masturbation. The patient was a 2-year-old girl with paroxysmal attacks of masturbation mimicking seizures. Her physical examination was completely normal, with no other neurological problems, although her EEG showed abnormal changes. By administration of anticonvulsant, the number of attacks reduced primarily and with the increment of the dose, subsided totally. ©Iranian Red Crescent Society.

Reaxys Database Information

Author keywords

Infant; Masturbation; Seizure

Indexed Keywords

EMTREE drug terms: anticonvulsive agent; carbamazepine; primidone; valproic acid

EMTREE medical terms: add on therapy; article; case report; drug substitution; electroencephalogram; female; human; infant; masturbation; outcome assessment; physical examination; seizure

Chemicals and CAS Registry Numbers: carbamazepine, 298-46-4, 8047-84-0; primidone, 120-33-7; valproic acid, 1069-77-0, 99-77-1

ISSN: 10614390 Source Type: Journal Original language: English

Document Type: Article